TOWN'S DOGS PUT ON WATER RATION

. . . in bizarre effort to lick drought

By MICHAEL TODD
Special to The NEWS

Cruel authorities in Yuti, Paraguay, are trying to solve their drought problem by regulating the amount of water pet owners can give to their dogs.

And loud pooch people are outraged.

"Puppies don't understand that there is a drought," one woman said. "They think they are being punished and they don't know why."

Amazingly the law affects dogs but not cats.

"We figured the dogs drink so much more than the cats it was okay to make the law that way," said Officer Ramon DeJuste.

"It is water that should be saved for humans."

Dog lovers say they will run afoul to give their canines the water they want.

"When my puppy goes walking around with its tongue dragging, you can bet I will give it water," one said.

"It would be outright terrible not to."

Runaway train roars 75 miles — BY ITSELF!

A speeding unmanned train barreled through thirty-three stations for 75 long miles before a man crawled along the roofs of four rail cars, reached the engine and miraculously brought it to a screeching halt.

Brave Mohammad Adwar "desperately fiddled with all the knobs and buttons in the driver's cabin and the train finally stopped when he touched a green button at Harewal," the Press Trust of India reported.

The engineer and his assistant had stopped at Mallapur station, 135 miles east of New Delhi, and got down to check a broken pipe on the engine's body.

Suddenly, the train's engine started moving and as it gathered speed vanished from sight, with Adwar the only person still on board.

Press Trust said an automatic switching system allowed the train to travel 75 miles before Adwar, a horseman in a rattle car, stopped it.

Beer saves man stuck in desert!

A tourist survived four horror-filled days in scorching, 100-degree desert temperatures by drinking two cans of beer, cactus juice and his own urine.

John S. Conners, 40, of Philadelphia was in fair condition in a Moab, Utah, hospital.

"I thought I was supposed to die," the thankful man told rescuers.

"I planned to start digging my grave."

A fancy-pants froggie named Wally is so highfalutin he dines at his very own dinner table, bathes in his very own bathtub and perches like a king on a throne — on his very own toilet!

"I hate to brag, but I'm sure I've got the only potty-trained frog in the world," laughs wily Wally's owner Ty Willis.

PROUD "parents" Ty and Raymonda Willis say Wally the frog is like having a little kid around the house — only he's better behaved!

"Wally wouldn't think of going to the bathroom anyplace except in his own john. And when he's done, he uses the toilet paper, flushes — and even washes up with soap and water.

"Having that frog is just like having a little kid around the house, except he's better behaved than most kids I know."

The crafty croaker hopped into Ty's life two years ago when his wife Raymonda found the little guy lounging around the garden of their Delray Beach, Fla., home.

"Something had taken a bite out of one of his legs and he seemed so pathetic Raymonda and I decided to take him in and patch him up," the kind-hearted hubby recalled.

"We took real good care of him, and by the time he was well, he figured he was part of the family. We'd sit down to dinner and Wally'd hop up in a chair right next to us, waiting to be served.

"And he was particularly interested when we went to the bathroom. He'd watch us use the john, and as soon as we were done, he'd hop up there and do his business.

"We were amazed at how quick he learned to do things."

Tickled Ty was delighted to have an Einstein amphibian in the family, but his wife Raymonda rebelled at the notion of sharing their dinner table with a flip-gobbling frog.

And she didn't relish having worshipful Wally sleeping around the bathroom with her, either.

So Ty built their frog-sized buddy his own froggie dining table and set it up right next to theirs. And there he installed a private, pint-size bathroom in the back of the house — complete with gleaming sink, tub and toilet.

"Now when we sit at our table, Wally hops on his tiny chair at his table and waits for dinner," his adoring owner told reporters.

"And you'd better move him, too, or he'll start croaking his head off."

But while-he'd Wally loves his john best of all.

"When he has to go, he just bounces up there and goes," Ty gloats. "He flushes and washes his little feet and everything.

"And every other night we fix him a bath in his own tub so he can wash his troubles away."

WHEN WE'T Wally the frog wants to take his daily bath, he hops right up to his own special

Denver cops bust 'baroness'

Police busted a "baroness" for conning people out of thousands of dollars in theft — and the baroness turned out to be a 6-foot, 280-pound transvestite.

James John Gonzales, 38, is accused of posing as European royalty and bilking an elderly woman of $2,500.

Gonzales used two different names — Baroness Maria Von Braun and Baroness Maria Von Thyssen.

A fat woman is enjoying the lighter life since surgeons removed a 180-pound cyst from her ovaries.

Doctors at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore removed the super-sized growth from Terrie Whitcome of Middleway, W. Va.

She weighed 708 pounds when she entered the hospital.

Now Mrs. Whitcome weighs 340 pounds — which means she lost 192 pounds of fat as well as 180 pounds of cyst.

105-year-old cowgirl boasts . . .

'I rode with Buffalo Bill'

At the age of 105, Edith Downs can call up a lot of memories, like studying photography with the founder of the Eastman Kodak Co. — or riding the range with Buffalo Bill Cody.

And her recipe for a long and healthy life is one you would expect from a tough old pioneer woman of the plains — "Be a good shot . . . and shoot first."

The daughter of an Indian agent, she grew up with the pioneers who settled in the Indian Territory near the forks of Washington's Spokane and Columbia rivers.

Now living in the Clifton Geriatric Center in Somerset, Mass., she delights in chatting about her famous friend, Buffalo Bill Cody.

"He was like another uncle to me," she explained. "But my mother didn't care much for him. For one thing, he didn't smell good. He didn't take a bath very often."

Her mother, a "proper" German woman, wanted little Edith to grow up a lady, but the headstrong youngster had other ideas.

She was practically born in a saddle and was an accomplished rider, so she ran away from home and joined Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show!

Her biggest thrill came when she was allowed to open the nightly shows by riding to the head of the mounted parade — right up front with the legendary Buffalo Bill himself.

"I was a real showoff," she admitted. "And I loved every minute of it. The audiences went wild over the shooting and riding. Every night was an adventure. And Bill Cody made sure everyone got their money's worth."

Eventually, she moved to Illinois and studied photography in Chicago with another man destined to make his mark in history, George Eastman, founder of the Eastman Kodak Company.

In the early 1900s, she married Jack Downs and later moved to Denver. Edith spent most time in Texas and lived for 30 years in Florida before finally moving to Massachusetts, where she recently marked her 105th birthday.

BORN IN THE SADDLE: Edith Downs is still galloping along at the age of 105. The remarkable woman ran away from home to become queen of the Wild West show that starred Buffalo Bill Cody.

Worldwide hunt for desperate beast!

BIGFOOT ESCAPES, KILLS 2!

By MARK LOMAX
Special to The NEWS

The world's first captured Bigfoot murdered a pair of armed guards before escaping into the wilderness and experts warn that the 7-foot, 500-pound beast is still at large and may kill again!

"This is a tragedy beyond measure," Dr. Leonard Owens, the man credited with the beast's capture, told reporters. "The Bigfoot was obviously frightened and had we reacted that fast and didn't with it properly, this never would have happened.

"We knew there were risks when we captured it and took every precaution to prevent a disaster," he added.

"My heart truly goes out to the families of the men who were killed. The Bigfoot was so strong and moved so quickly they didn't even have time to draw their guns."

Dr. Owens and his team first made headlines last March 27 when they captured the Bigfoot in Montana after a grueling six-month search.

As The NEWS and other media reported at the time, the creature seemed to be adapting to life in captivity and actually stood higher than apes on intelligence tests.

The latest drama unfolded when the expert, his assistants and guards tried to move the 500-pound creature from Montana to Vienna to continue their research with famed zoologist Peter Springer.

Dr. Owens said the Bigfoot was heavily sedated for the tranquilizer flight but apparently regained consciousness during the trip.

When the plane landed in Vienna, the creature crushed the skulls of two guards before it bolted to freedom and vanished in the countryside, where it remains at large today, he added.

The guards who perished in the incident have not been identified and while Viennese authorities are known to have launched a massive search for the escaped Bigfoot, they refuse to comment, apparently to avoid causing a panic.

In fact, the only clue to the creature's whereabouts has come from a handful of people who claim to have seen a howling sasquatch out of Vienna.

Dr. Owens, who is now in charge of recapturing the Bigfoot grew slimmer by the day. "If the Bigfoot had remained in the city our chances of getting it back would be much better," said Dr. Owens. "But now we're going to have a tough time finding it.

"Don't forget that these creatures live in the wilderness and are so elusive that this was the first and only one to be captured. The importance of getting the Bigfoot back cannot be overestimated," he added. "This creature already has the blood of two innocent men on its hands and there's no reason to think that it won't kill again."

Moses had psychic powers!

By MICHAEL TODD/Special correspondent

Ancient Hebrew prophets Moses, Elijah and Elisha had psychic powers which allowed them to perform miracles, a New York City rabbi says.

"Most miracles in the Bible are psychic phenomena," said Rabbi Alvin Boberoff, who teaches Judaism and the Unknown Healing, the Occult and Parapsychology at Manhattan's Institute of Adult Jewish Studies.

Rabbi reveals how top Biblical prophets pulled off miracles!

Rabbi Boberoff believes that when Moses saw the burning bush, a signal from God as described in the Bible, he was actually seeing its aura — the energy said to emanate from all things, but which only psychics can see.

"He was quite naturally shocked," he said. "All psychics react this way when they first see an aura, except those who know they have had the gift since childhood.

"Elisha is the classic example of the Jewish prophet," he said. "The leader had telepathic powers, he had psychokinetic powers to move objects with his mind, he astral-projected his spirit through space without moving his body and he healed," said the rabbi.

Rabbi Boberoff cited a miracle recorded in the Second Book of the Kings as an example of Elisha's psychic powers. The Bible says that when a man lost the head of an ax in a deep body of water, Elisha told him, "Reach out your hand and grab it up."

"The prophet made a heavy piece of iron float to the top of the water by moving it with his mind," the rabbi said. "This seems to be an example of psychokinesis."

There are also examples in the Bible of psychic healing by both Elisha and Elijah — even bringing dead children back to life.

"Elisha was even able to heal after his own death.

"A corpse that was dropped cling on incident in the an- on his bones came to life again," Rabbi Boberoff said, cient Jewish commentaries on the Bible.

MIRACLE at the burning bush: Moses saw a psychic aura around the tree — only he could see.

Most branches of the Jewish faith refuse to teach about psychic powers. Rabbi Boberoff believes, because Judaism was founded at a time when many kinds of magic and occult practices were widespread among pagans.

The early rabbis did not want to encourage private use of psychic powers.

Hero chimp lands plane after pilot passes out!

By TOM MALONE
Special to The NEWS

A twin-engine plane, with an unconscious pilot and two terrified passengers aboard, landed safely at a remote jungle airstrip — with a chimpanzee at the controls.

Amazingly, ChiChi the chimp brought the plane down after pilot David Nisbeth-Smith suffered a heart attack and collapsed at the controls.

The pilot's wife Betty and her brother Andrew Waltman were on board and stunned to see the chimp take the controls.

"I was petrified," Waltman said. "It was the first time I had ever been in a small plane, so I had no idea how to fly it. I was prepared to crash and die. Then the cranky look went."

"If it weren't for ChiChi, we'd all be dead," said the pilot's wife. "I was screaming and trying to revive David when ChiChi went to work. He was using both hands and feet to fly that thing."

The chimp's landing was a little rough, according to an eyewitness.

"I saw the plane coming in and it was bouncing around and veering," said Dugal Mapenda, the sole employee of the small airstrip outside Kisumu, Kenya. "It touched down and skidded all the runway. I ran to see what was wrong and saw that monkey at the controls."

The chimp was able to pull off the heroic stunt after months of watching Nisbeth-Smith fly the plane, according to Dr. Kasuya Kahia, a biologist at Nairobi University.

PILOT David Nisbeth-Smith is recuperating at a hospital.

CHICHI swung into action after the pilot collapsed.

"Chimps learn by watching and mimicking. ChiChi flew with his owner on his mail route every day for months," Dr. Kahia said. "The chimp knew he was near the landing strip so he just repeated the steps he had seen hundreds of times before."

Patrick Hoover, an overseas civil engineer, said the design of the plane helped.

"This type plane is relatively easy to handle," he said. "It's made to be easy to fly and this proves it."

As for Nisbeth-Smith, he says he will never look at his pet the same way again.

"He saved my life," he said, while recovering at a Kisumu hospital. "He's been like a best friend and working buddy for years."

This may not be the first time a chimp has landed a plane, Dr. Kahia said.

"I have heard rumors that several years ago in Brazil a chimpanzee landed a plane after the pilot had a stroke," he said. "I thought it was true then and now I am convinced.

Woman grows diamond toenails!

BEVERLY Stevens shows off a handful of diamonds she recently harvested — from her TOES!

By ROSE GRADY
Special to The NEWS

Beverly Stevens says she's just about the luckiest woman in the world with an adoring husband, a beautiful new daughter and lots of diamonds — growing on her toes!

The San Francisco legal secretary and part-time model has clusters of industrial quality diamonds growing where less fortunate people have toenails.

And the only problem it causes is the time she must spend cutting the stones free with a special diamond cutter she had to buy because regular toenail clippers failed to do the job.

"It's time consuming," the 28-year-old admitted, "but selling your very own home-grown diamonds is a great way to supplement your income."

It's been almost two years since the pea-sized, pebble-like growths she's had on her toenails since birth were actually honest-to-goodness diamonds. Since then, the tiny gems have earned her a cool $37,000.

"My toenails are actually a crystalline form of carbon, which is what diamonds are made of," she explained. "The diamonds I'm able to cut free are like little slivers that pop up from the nail's surface.

"When I grind them off, new ones crop up in less than a week. Two weeks later, they're fully developed and I'm able to cut them off again. It just goes on and on, growing just like toenails do."

To carefully remove each stone from the base nail, Beverly uses a special mini-grinder with a flexible cutting wheel covered with diamond dust. It takes from 10 to 15 minutes to remove each stone.

"I save them for a month or so, then I send them to a company that processes and sells industrial diamonds," she explained. "They're sold to firms that make abrasives, grinding wheels, phonograph needles, tools and various scientific instruments.

"My toe-grown diamonds are not the breathtaking, crystal-clear stones used in jewelry.

"Mine are flawed and kind of smoky. But that's what industrial diamonds are like.

"I've been to loads of doctors to find out what there is in my body that causes the diamonds to grow, but it has them stumped. They haven't a clue."

'BIG BROTHER' EMPLOYER BANS SMOKING AT HOME!

Some U.S. businesses are butting into the private lives of their employees — and telling workers how to behave even when they're not at work!

Here are some of the rules workers must live by:

● An Illinois company doesn't allow drinking at or off the job.

● A Wisconsin firm won't allow employees to rate motorcycles.

● A Tennessee company forbids workers to smoke at home or at work — and enforces the rule with urine tests.

Vicki David went from a size 24 to a size 12!

"I lost 125 pounds!"

Vicki David not only lost 125 pounds with the help of Easy Glider,® as these illustrations show, but better than that she has kept it off—for going on two years now! Vicki still watches what she eats, works out five days a week, and says "I'm in better shape than I probably have ever been." Vicki David®

If you are one of those people who have tried "just dieting"—over and over again, with heartbreaking results each time—maybe you've been missing a valuable ingredient. Exercise. That's what Vicki discovered. "Dieting alone just wasn't enough for me," she said. "Easy Glider supplied the missing link that helped me lose over 100 pounds."

The secret is Easy Glider—the exercise that can help you lose weight and keep it off, even while watching TV!

You can lose weight on your own schedule...even while lounging in the shower or watching TV! Just make up your mind to reduce your calorie intake by eating fewer fats and sugars. Then step on the glider pads, set the tension control for desired resistance, and you'll be adding the missing link to a slimmer, well-toned body.

New and improved! Easy Glider is better than bikes... racquetball...even jogging!

An aerobic workout on the new and improved Easy Glider is one of the most efficient ways to burn up calories and achieve total fitness. It simulates cross country skiing, which some experts tell us is the world's #1 fitness exercise. New steel rails and improved precision rollers make Easy Glider smoother, quieter, more durable and comfortable than ever. You can also adjust ski pole and foot pad tension for "just right" muscle-toning of upper and lower body.

Unlike racquetball's start-and-stop workout, Easy Glider's continuous motion maintains your aerobic heart rate. Unlike some exercise bikes, which focus on the lower body, Easy Glider works all the major muscle groups. Unlike the impacts with jogging, it's fluid gliding action makes it far less stressful.

Easy Glider gives YOU the workout...can you walk?

This one simple exercise strengthens the heart, tones the muscles, burns calories and improves stamina. And [illegible] stomach, legs, thighs and buttocks. All for an amazingly low total of just $19.95—a real bargain when considering the advanced design, quality, and the fact that other ski simulators cost as much as $300.

Arizona man marries 3,000-year-old mummy!

"SHE'S BEAUTIFUL," says happy newlywed John McNaire, as he shows off his mummified bride for a NEWS photographer.

By MICHAEL TOOB
Special to The NEWS

An American tourist has fallen in love and married a 3,000-year-old mummy he first saw while visiting Cairo, Egypt — and now they're honeymooning in Arizona.

"It was truly love at first sight," said John L. McNaire of New York City.

"I saw her face and I knew she was the one for me, regardless of her age.

"When I held her hand, I felt the richness of time."

McNaire said he had two problems getting permission from Egyptian authorities to bring Princess Arita to the U.S.

"The mummy is overrun with bureaucrats," McNaire noted. "So they really didn't mind my bringing one home.

"I made a large donation to the museum in Cairo — a kind of dowry — and they helped me load her up and fly her home.

"I can't tell you how happy we are. She has such a sense of serenity and she is marvelously preserved."

Little is known about Princess Arita's family. McNaire said. She was discovered in a tomb at the foot of the Sphinx.

"We were married by an Egyptian official. He said it was legal and binding."

McNaire said he chose Arita as a honeymoon site because of the hot, dry climate — ideal for keeping her dark body in the best of shape. "She loves the sun," he explained. "I read on that our lifestyle will be different from other newlyweds,' the 29-year-old computer programmer admits.

"But I work out of my home. I'm used to a quiet life with little partying."

Princess Arita has been traced by Egyptologists to an obscure family of beauticians who tended to the royal family's needs.

"There is some written evidence that Princess Arita's family knew strange and secret potions for preserving a person's beauty and enhancing their sex appeal," McNaire said.

"All I know is that when I am with her, she is the most natural person I have ever known.

"We communicate on another plane, on inner level, without words.

"I just hope she lasts another 3,000 years — or at least for another 50 or so years of marriage to me," said the Police say he frequently leaves undigested food in the toilet bowl.

MADONNA'S XXX-RATED HOME VIDEOS

Hospital kicks out fat lady who took up 3 beds!

Enormous Elizabeth Ann Vergara was sent home from the hospital because she was so fat she was taking up three beds — and now the massive mom is been imprisoned with breath-dread of respiratory failure. The 704-pound fat lady had ing trouble at a clinic in Antofagasta, Chile.

But because her billowing blubber took up so much room, other patients had to be turned away.

"We felt it would be better for her to go home, where relatives could care for her in her own bed," said a spokeswoman for the clinic, Antonia Chupas de Barrios.

"At the time she left us, she was stable. We expected her family to bring her back if her condition worsened, but apparently they didn't."

Friends of the dead woman say the 45-year-old mother of two grown sons was immobilized by her weight and spent most of her days in bed before she became ill. Last month she developed breathing trouble and was hauled by truck to a local hospital.

With the help of doctors and nurses, the massive mom was wheeled into a room and placed on three hospital beds tied together. She was given painkillers and placed in an oxygen tent and her condition improved.

But, anxious to free up beds for other patients doctors decided not to let her remain in the hospital. Once her condition was stabilized, Mrs. Vergara was bundled up and taken by ambulance to her home, where she was nursed by her son Raul and daughter-in-law Maria.

"My mother was a very sick lady when they sent her home again," said Raul. "And the whole time she was with us she was very sick and weak."

"They told us she was too fat to be in the hospital. They told us they couldn't handle her because she took up too much room."

"They let us know they didn't want her back again and that's why she died. She might have lived if she'd been in the hospital."

'Ugly duckling' girl's prayer . . .

Please, God, give me a new face!

The miracle of modern surgery is slowly transforming tragic "ugly duckling" Michelle Willis into something she never dared to dream she could be — a beautiful swan!

And today, 21-year-old Michelle, who used to look in the mirror and cry her heart out because she believed she was too ugly for anyone to love, is engaged to be married.

Michelle, who lives with her mother in Sunderland, England, was born with only half a face.

She had only one eye, half a skull and she was missing one cheek, had a cracked jaw, a bent nose and one ear was higher than the other.

When she was born, her mother couldn't let me look at her for three days, despite my pleas. At last, I was allowed. They kept a blanket covering the side of her face.

And when I did peek at her I wept and thought, "This thing can't be mine."

I wanted to push her away. But then I clasped her close and her tiny clawed fingers held me. And I whispered to her, "You're mine and I love you."

And from that heart-tugging moment on, the courageous battle to transform an ugly duckling into a beautiful swan was on.

Here are just some of the amazing operations guilty Michelle endured:

■ A piece of her skull was cut out and grafted to replace the missing half of her forehead.

■ Her jawline was moved from left to right and her teeth were fitted that her smile to make her face match.

■ Skin from under her right arm was used to build up her cheek. But over the gaping eye socket removed to build a new cheek. But over the gaping eye socket ear were used to make her a new.

■ Tissue from her tummy was used to fill out her cheek.

And for weeks on the operating table the flesh from her entire body was cut away from each bone and peeled off like a glove to enable surgeons to perform their miraculous work.

Was all the pain and suffering worth it? Michelle thinks it was. Not she doesn't really see herself as a beautiful beauty.

"All I want is an ordinary face," she explained. "One that can be lost in the crowd. I don't want to look like a film star . . .

Hubby beats up wife's lover for wearing his clothes!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A jealous husband went berserk when he returned from his night-time job and discovered a teenage neighbor was wearing his favorite outfit — right down to his underwear.

Abdul Abdul Hoodinha was convinced his wife was having an affair because his wardrobe was vanishing and so was his bank account.

Armed with a knife, the bewildered husband grabbed a waiting cab from on the street and demanded he know the name of his wife's lover, according to evidence at Abdul's trial in Cardiff, Wales.

Cliff Robertson, 17, was wearing Abdul's favorite clothes including his wedding vest, when Abdul caught up with him.

"We don't say no more! We don't come in this house when you're here," Robertson told Abdul.

The hapless kid hadn't been bothered by intimacy with a jubilant, breaking his heart-cap said Prosecutor Barbara Tonkin.

Defense lawyer Keith Thomas revealed that while Abdul, 26, was working in Liverpool his wife was "cheerfully entertaining other people at her home" in Wales.

The brash wife's guilty secret was not only wearing Abdul's clothes, but also using his checkbook and driving his car. The court heard.

Abdul was astounded to ten years probation after he admitted inflicting grievous bodily harm and having an offensive weapon.

The married hubby now argues reconciled with his wife and has found a job closer to home.

TODAY'S STUPID KIDS ARE GREAT NEWS FOR OLD FOLKS!

I'm happy as a clam after reading that American kids' scores on the SAT college entrance exam are falling faster than a lead balloon!

Let's face it. Most kids today are dumb as a post and need a calculator to add 2 and 2.

But, hey, that's great for us older folks. We'll never have to worry about losing our jobs to these young idiots. And not only that, these dumbo young people will be easy to fool and separate from their money — which is just gravy for my smart generation. Anytime we run short of cash, all we have to do is go down to the mall where these young imbeciles hang out and sell 'em the Brooklyn Bridge or the space shuttle.

We won't even have to use fine print to cheat 'em on contracts — big print will do just fine because they can't understand that either!

And another big benefit from this bubble-brained generation — we can put 'em to work doing the dumb things that smart people are doing now. We can make an all-kid crew, for instance.

This same report says that young Americans are so stupid that 41 percent did their share drivers' license test at least four times. My retarded cousin only had to take it TWICE, for crying out loud. But what the hell. If those kids are too dumb to drive then they deserve to ride a skateboard for the rest of their life.

But what makes me so gay [illegible] said is that the just-released results of a three-year education national study are being rav[illegible] Back in the 1950s and '60s we [illegible] smarter. Folks

Chinese food laced with opium!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Health officials closed 32 restaurants in the Chinese city of Luoyang because they tried to get customers addicted to their food — by lacing it with opium.

"Needless to say, there were quite a few satisfied customers who kept coming back for more noodles and dogs," said health inspector Tong Chi-Shing.

Health officials were suspicious when [illegible] business to find out why the noodles and roast owners who didn't use opium in their recipes," inspector Tong told the newspaper Wen Hui Bao.

Authorities confiscated 1,600 pounds of opium poppy pods and 22 pounds of opium poppy seeds from the restaurants.

"Owners of the restaurants admitted they were trying to get customers ad-

"Opium poppy pods or seeds had been sprinkled over the food. People were getting high, but it had nothing to do with the food," said inspector Tong.

One young couple had six servings of noodles and staggered out of the restaurant in a stupor, according to the inspector.

"Almost everyone we observed reacted to the heavy dose they normally would be after a plate of noodles," he added.

Isabelle Martin:

"Here are the 19 foods that cause you to lose weight..."

Everyone who has tried them has lost weight. Proven results.

LOSE WEIGHT! An Amazing Discovery: Negative Calories How you can lose weight easily, even if you eat big meals...

No dieting is necessary. Eat as much as you want of these foods and you will lose weight. Here is proof.

Isabelle Martin, Weight Loss Advisory, 30 West 36th Street, New York, NY 10018

Dear Friend:

Do you want to lose weight? Do you want to lose weight easily, even if you eat big meals? Do you want to lose weight without dieting?

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, then I have some very good news for you. I have discovered 19 foods that cause you to lose weight. Not only do they cause you to lose weight, but they cause you to lose weight easily, even if you eat big meals, and without dieting.

I call these foods "negative calorie foods" because they have a negative number of calories. In other words, you burn more calories digesting them than they contain.

Here is proof. Everyone who has tried them has lost weight. Many people have lost 10 pounds or more in a few weeks. Some people have lost 20 pounds or more in a few months.

If you are like most people, you have probably tried many diets in the past. You have probably lost weight on some of them, but you have also probably gained it back. Why? Because dieting is unnatural. It makes you feel hungry and deprived. It makes you crave the foods you are trying to avoid.

But with negative calorie foods, you never feel hungry or deprived. You can eat as much as you want of these foods and you will lose weight. That is a promise.

Here are the 19 foods that cause you to lose weight:

1. Apples
2. Asparagus
3. Broccoli
4. Cabbage
5. Carrots
6. Cauliflower
7. Celery
8. Cucumbers
9. Grapefruit
10. Lemons
11. Lettuce
12. Limes
13. Onions
14. Oranges
15. Peaches
16. Pears
17. Radishes
18. Spinach
19. Tomatoes

That's it. Nothing else. Just these 19 foods. Eat as much as you want of them and you will lose weight. Guaranteed.

Why do these foods cause you to lose weight? Because they are negative calorie foods. Your body burns more calories digesting them than they contain. Therefore, you lose weight.

Here is a list of some of the people who have lost weight using negative calorie foods:

- Mary Smith, 32, Secretary, Lost 15 pounds in 3 weeks
- John Doe, 45, Salesman, Lost 20 pounds in 4 weeks
- Jane Doe, 28, Housewife, Lost 12 pounds in 2 weeks
- Bob Johnson, 50, Retired, Lost 25 pounds in 5 weeks
- Sue Williams, 35, Teacher, Lost 18 pounds in 3 weeks

And many, many more.

I have a free booklet that tells you all about negative calorie foods. It tells you how they work, why they work, and how you can use them to lose weight easily, even if you eat big meals. It also tells you how you can get a free copy of my "Weight-Loss Advisory" service.

To get your free booklet, just fill out the coupon below and mail it to me. I will send you the booklet by return mail. There is no charge for the booklet or for the "Weight-Loss Advisory" service.

Don't delay. Start losing weight today!

WHAT A RIP-OFF!

IRS sticks secretary with her company's $119G tax bill!

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

An honest secretary thought she was doing the right thing by telling the IRS her ex-boss owed them $119,765 in payroll taxes — but now they want her to pay it.

"With IRS bureaucrats you're guilty until proven innocent," said Sharon Arasberger.

"That's the American way as far as those evil things are concerned."

Sharon's incredible ordeal with the IRS began innocently enough in 1984 when she quit her job as controller for a landscaping company in Austin, Texas.

"The boss was opening another company in California and draining money from the business here in Austin," she told The NEWS. "There wasn't enough money to pay the payroll taxes."

Determined not to be held responsible for those unpaid taxes, Sharon, now 28, reminded her boss about the taxes and when nothing was done to pay them, she quit her job.

She and another employee then reported the unpaid taxes to the IRS.

The complaint later misfired and Sharon found herself in hot water until she got a letter from the IRS giving her 10 days to pay the $119,765. The IRS in response after she had filed her complaint was supposed to pay," she said.

"It's really unfair that an innocently harmless bookkeeper has to be up with it." Under federal law, bookkeepers, clerks and assistants who have no ownership in a business can still be held responsible for taxes the business owes if they simply write checks for the company — as Sharon did — then also be stuck with the tax debt of their bosses.

An IRS spokeswoman in Austin said Sharon is responsible because she signed most of the company's checks and knew about the unpaid taxes long before she quit.

"That's not true," Sharon said. "I found out about the unpaid taxes three months before I quit.

"They won't even tell me if they are going after my ex-boss for the money."

Trusting Sharon said her life has been put on hold until she pleads her case before an IRS appeals officer, hopefully in the near future.

"They could end up taking every cent I make for the rest of my life and my husband's Sharon said she is working for another firm and is still signing checks. "That's part of the job with most companies," she said.

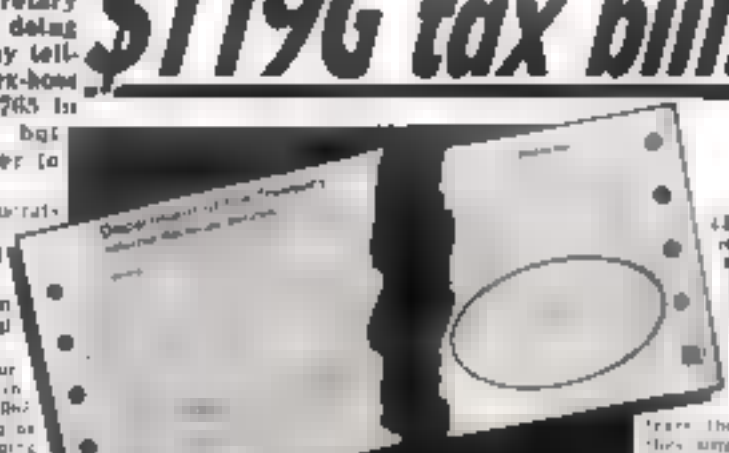
"I tried to be a good citizen and report a tax fraud to the government and I end up getting the short end of the stick."



LEFT HOLDING the bag' Honest Sharon Arasberger, above, reported her ex-employer's unpaid taxes to the IRS — and has since been stuck with the bill, left, for $119,765.14!

"If the woman had been able to speak English or French, she could be alive today," he said.

The victim and her female companion, whose names were not released, were part of a group on a beach outing to Paul Sauve Provincial Park. The pair had moved from the beach to swim in deeper water.

"The victim was swimming in deeper water, but her group was overseen and decided to stay out of the water to watch her friend," the constable said. "When her friend disappeared from sight, she ran to get help.

"But the people at that part of the beach spoke only French and English and the friend was unable to alert them to the victim's plight. She ran back to where her own group was but, by then, it was too late."

Police divers recovered the woman's body a short time later.

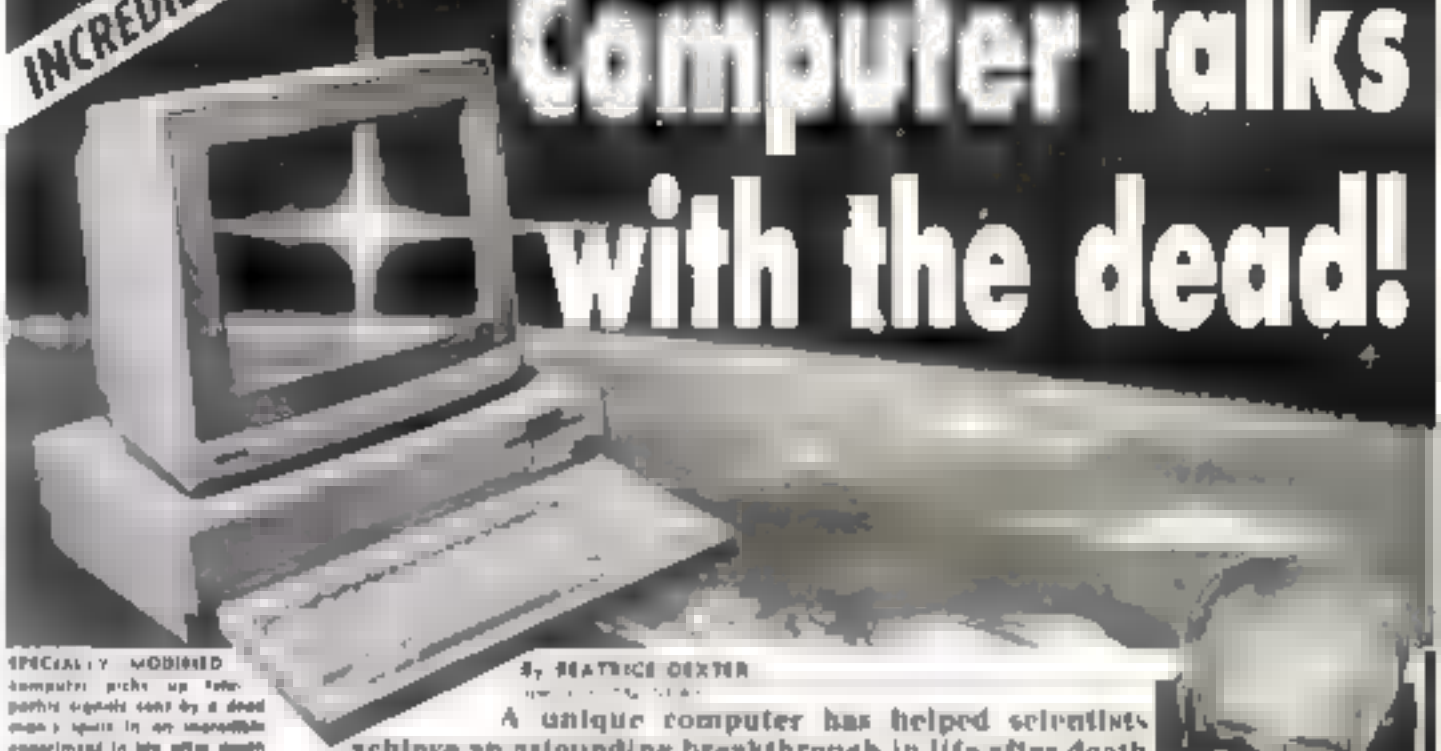
Computer talks with the dead!



SPECIALLY MODIFIED computer picks up 'telepathic signals sent by a dead man's spirit in an incredible experiment in two-way death communication

By BEATRICE DEXTER

A unique computer has helped scientists achieve an astounding breakthrough in life-after-death research — by picking up signals from a man who died and recording his messages from beyond the grave!

DECEASED Comrade K was specially trained in computer codes before he died and went on to the afterlife

Special code enables machine to make contacts beyond the grave!

Researchers at the University of Tashkent in the Soviet Union have successfully intercepted more than a dozen messages from the man, whom they call "Comrade K," according to an article in the publication The Pharmaceutical Studies. The dead man describes the afterlife as "joyous, peaceful and complete."

In 13 years of research we worked with 17 terminally ill subjects undergoing tests in a specially designed computer suite," wrote Dr. Dmitri Sychev, head of the four-man team of research psychologists. "We also developed a higher sensitive computerized machine which responds to the slightest changes in electrical fields. The machine was designed to accept the code and reflect it in letters as a typewriter would.

"Thirty-six subjects passed on without a successful contact. But last month Comrade K succeeded — and spoke to us from beyond the grave. He told us that he was not afraid to die and that he was in a place filled with love and happiness with constant light. In the machine at the moment of death, Comrade K said words, or rather letters, as he was able to digital them, for several weeks because of a faulty receiver lamp.

The dead man used the coded telepathic method of transmitting signals — which involved a personal recognition code — and broke through the barrier of fear.

It would be impossible to put into words what we felt when we saw his first transmission come up on the computer screen," wrote Dr. Sychev. "Comrade K's message was brief, but it was a joyful one. He told us that he was in a place filled with love and happiness. He said he was not afraid to die and that he was in a place filled with love and happiness.

Scientists, however, Comrade K identified himself by twelve of a call sign known only to myself and one of my fellow researchers. We know without a doubt that it is the dead man who is communicating with us."

Dr. Sychev and his colleagues have questioned Comrade K — a physicist who died of cancer at the age of 58 — and the dead man has supplied precise answers.

From their computer readout they have constructed the first scientifically verified description of life after death.

Comrade K's message is one of peace and happiness, leaving no room for fear of the unknown. He says he is in a place filled with love and warmth and is surrounded by light and warmth and a feeling of overwhelming love and well being.

"Although he left behind two small children and a devoted wife he says he does not worry about them in the least. "The worst that can happen to a person on Earth is death and I now know death to be a wonderful thing," he told us."

Dr. Sychev and his fellow researchers have faithfully recorded every word of Comrade K's messages and plan to publish a transcript of the whole

My life's a living hell 'cause hubby stinks to high heaven!

Dear Dotti: My husband's body odor has made my life a living hell. He takes one bath a week at most and wouldn't use soap or deodorant if his life depended on it. My friends refuse to visit me because they can't cope with the smell and my husband has been passed over for promotion after promotion at work because people can't stomach being around him.

I know he smelled bad when I married him but I thought he would change. What should I do? — Stank Out in Smithville

Dear Stank Out: In case you didn't know it, B.O. is grounds for divorce. Tell hubby to shower up or ship out — and if he refuses, take him to court!

Confidential

Dear Curious in Dallas: There are a lot of people you should be outright with but the boss ain't one of them!

Dear Ugly Ann Apple in Nevada: I don't care how many Alibi trials you're taking. There's nothing "safe" about having an encounter with seven big friends!

Dear Disgruntled in Seattle: See what you like — shepherd who eats shit and criminals alike it to brain dead!

Dear Disgusted Mom in Akron: The best way to break a child of over picking is to make him eat the "fruits" of his labor!

Dear Furious Fatty in Florida: I'll have you know that each one of my best friends is fat — and I laugh at her, too!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell a little of it, too! write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

I'm your long-lost son, Dotti, and I need some $

Dear Dotti: You may not believe this but I'm your long-lost son. I also happen to be a hypnotherapist like you so I'll get right to the point. I need $50,000 because I've already spent my welfare check on booze and drugs and my skin-guard suit — your lovely daughter-in-law — is demanding more promises and certainly wants me to get a job. Do I get the cash or not? — Son in Canada

Dear Son: Even if you were my son — and you damn sure aren't — all you'd get out of me is a kick in the butt. The bottom line? Get due!

My dope fiend mom won't let me take drugs

Dear Dotti: One night I came home and found my mom doing drugs. I'm only 10 but I got really mad and went out and did the same thing. Unfortunately, my brothers found out and told mom and then she beat the hell out of me. Now she wants me to move in with my father, who is even worse than she is. I'm begging you to help me, Dotti. What should I do? — Angry Kid in Houston

Dear Angry Kid: Call the police and tell them what you told me. They'll get your drug addicted mother the help she needs and see to it that you're put in a foster home with folks who'll give you the decent upbringing you deserve!

I've got the hots for my sexy father-in-law

Dear Dotti: I have my husband very much but as strange as it sounds I'm crazy about his father, a widower — what his deal? I really have a crush on my father-in-law! and desperately want to make love to him. Should I tell him how I feel? — Hot Pants in Hollywood

Dear Hot Pants: Are you out of your mind? Keep your feelings to yourself and pray that your father-in-law doesn't find out about your sick fantasies. If he does, he'll probably have you committed to the nearest mental institution!

He sure believes I'm having a space alien's love child

Dear Dotti: My parents don't believe that a space alien made me pregnant even though I haven't had a period for four months and am getting bigger by the day. What should I do? — Frustrated in Kansas City

Dear Frustrated: I hate to say it, kid, but if you can't get the space alien to stay, you're plumb out of luck!

Ask the Countess

Where is my precious poodle Snowball?

Dear Countess: Do you have any idea where my little poodle Snowball got off to? He ran out to do his business in the backyard last week and I haven't seen him since. I'm sure you know that he's the only "DumBy" I've got since my husband died and I'll give anything to get him back. — Lost in Centerville

Dear Lost: Snowball cleared a set through your neighborhood and got so disoriented that he couldn't find his way back home. Fortunately, an animal control officer found him and took him to the pound. You'll find him there, safe and sound!

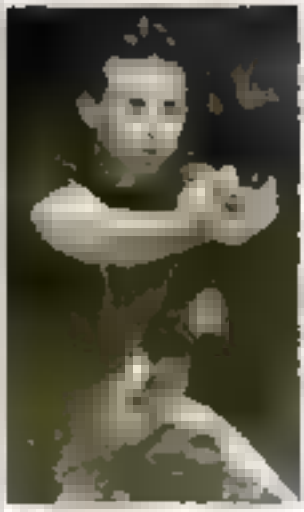
KILLER DIES IN SHOC
WITH UNDERCOVER



UNDERCOVER agent Mario Le
Grave shows a knife of Davila

Escaped serial killer Casio Davila held a horrified housewife at gunpoint in a secluded parking garage and was ready to shoot her down in cold blood — when two undercover cops appeared and blew the hoodlum's brains out!

"He was going to kill me, he really was, and then those two policemen showed up from out of nowhere," said trembling Teresa Neves, 22. "I said a prayer for salvation and God sent two angels of mercy to save my life."

Decorated narcotics cops Carlos de Oliveira and Mario Salerno had gone to the garage to make a drug buy, never dreaming they'd come face-to-face with their nation's most feared fugitive.

And yesterday, a police photographer on hand to record the dope deal captured the entire, heart-stopping shootout on film — from the moment the bloodthirsty thug attacked his helpless victim to the instant cops blew the bum away.

Police photographer captures heart-stopping drama on film

"We were lucky. We just happened to be in the right place at the right time," Detective de Oliveira told reporters in Belem, Brazil. "But we saved a lady's life and brought down a man who's murdered at least 13 women just for kicks — and that makes us feel real good."

Teresa's bloodcurdling brush with death began when she walked into the garage of her downtown apartment building — and the fiendish Davila pounced on her from the shadows.

"He was a crazy man, just totally nuts," the shaken lady recalled. He grabbed me around the throat and jammed a pistol in my ribs and told me to give him my car keys.

I hoped maybe he would go there and leave me alone but when he got the keys he started to laugh like a hyena. He said 'You're going to die — you know that don't you?' And I knew it. He started doing crazy new rituals, a ceremony and I screamed my head off. I could tell he was going to kill me just for the fun of it."

But the psychotic rape maniac got to the revenge.

"We recognized Casio Davila the minute we saw him, of course," Det. de Oliveira recalled. "He'd been on parole for killing 10 women and then he escaped and killed at least three more, so we were on the lookout.

"We were shocked to see him with that poor woman and we felt we had to do something fast."

But when the brave, arrogant Davila threw down his gun, the doomed hoodlum pumped his pistol at Teresa's head.

"He had the lady in front of him as a shield but we knew we had to get a shot at him. Because if he got out of there with her as a hostage she was as good as dead," Officer Salerno said. "So we signaled our photographer in the van to create a distraction — and then we went to work."

When the gunmen turned toward the truck where photog Francisco Rocha was hiding, the detectives opened fire — and put two bullets in Davila's brain.

"I'm just glad those guys are good shots," terrified Teresa said later. "I could feel their bullets zip past my head and I could feel that madman's blood splatter all over me. But when it was over, I

All in the family SHOCKER!

Sister divorces her brother — to wed her OTHER brother!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Big sis Sandra Howard loves her brothers very much — so much that she married both of them, one after the other!

The pretty blonde from Harare, Zimbabwe, defied the law to wed her brother Stephen in 1987. But that marriage came to an end in 1990 when she fell in love with her other brother Andrew and divorced Stephen to marry him.

"All the time we were growing up, I adored my baby brothers, so marrying them doesn't seem strange to me," said Sandra.

"They are just the closest people in the world to me. They are handsome, they are intelligent and I trust them totally."

The shocking set, a 34-year-old nurse's aide, says she always pulled ahead with her brothers, but in 1986, she and Stephen, now 31, began to get serious.

They realized they had fallen in love when Stephen was transferred from Harare to Bulawayo in connection with his engineering job.

Defying taboos, the couple decided to marry and carried through with their plan in a private ceremony. Friends and family were at the wedding, she says, and they gave their blessings to the union.

The marriage between Stephen and Sandra was a happy one, but Sandra worried about its effect on Andrew. The youngest of the three, 29-year-old Andrew began suffering from severe depression.

"It broke my heart to see him looking like I didn't love him," said Sandra. "I thought he was an outcast. I wanted to spend my life with Andrew, myself weeping to be [illegible] with him, to take care of him."

Stephen agreed to give his blessing to the union.

SIAMESE-TWIN WHALES

Marine biologists have discovered what is believed to be the world's first Siamese killer whale!

Schoolkids have some mighty tough questions — for God!

By DANIELLA GOODEN
Special to The NEWS

From the mouths of babes have come these candid queries to the Almighty that cover everything from the Bible to school books.

"My grandfather says You were around when he was a little boy. How far back do You go?" one youngster wrote.

"Why is Sunday school on Sunday?" I thought it was supposed to be a day of rest," mused another child.

The questions are compiled in the book Letters to God: The New Collection, by authors Stuart Hample and Eric Marshall.

"Dear God, Did You really mean 'Do unto others as they do unto you', because if You did then I'm going to fix my brother," wrote Doris.

"Instead of having people die and having to make new ones, why don't You just keep the ones You have now?" asked a little girl named Jane.

Gerry penned one of her deep concerns to God and asked for His help. "Please put another holiday between Christmas and Easter. There is nothing good in there now."

Here are a few more outcries to God from the kids.

"I bet it is very hard for You to love everybody in the whole world. There are only four people in our family and I can never do it."

"I'm an American. What are You?"

Blacksocks in Chino start shaping the workday at some small employers like Skyline Lunch Service and spend half their working day getting all sweaty.

By cutting the workday from eight to six hours, workers would have more time for other activities, suggested Chino 11, a member of the State Commission for Re-creation in the Hinterlands.

Chino-old small-scale field workers can be seen walking, chatting, drinking tea, reading newspapers, playing cards and talking on the phone when they should be working.

Top Medical Doctor Speaks Out

An Open Letter To Anyone 20 Pounds In Two Weeks

LazyTrim™* has already helped scores of people lose their excess pounds and inches faster and easier than they ever thought possible. Why not find out what LazyTrim can do for you by accepting the first two weeks at my risk!

Meet Dr. Robert J. Rogers, the physician who will place his entire medical reputation on the marvelous effectiveness of LazyTrim—the fastest growing weight loss innovation in America.

Dear Friend,

I've discovered something very powerful for the almost effortless removal of stubborn bulging fatty deposits. In fact it's so powerful that, depending on how much you're overweight, it allows you to lose up to 20 pounds of fat, flab and flesh in two weeks. And amazing as it may seem, you can lose this awesome amount of weight, while you eat up to six meals a day!

Real meals, health enriching delicious meals, meals that give you that wonderful satisfying feeling that you've really eaten when you get up from the table. But, best of all, it's found on science. Factual science, not false claims or empty promises, and I'll stake my medical reputation on it.

- NO calorie counting.
- NO side effects, natural, gentle, safe.
- NO caffeine, or harmful stimulants.
- NO nervousness or irritability.

You see, being a medical doctor who has specialized in weight loss and rejuvenation for more than 10 years, I've learned a great deal about how you can successfully destroy your stubborn fat, once and for all! How you can actually shed all your unwanted pounds and inches and restore years of your lifetime without the pain and effort you may have thought it once took. How you can deliberately lose your embarrassing fat and flab, even if you've failed time and time again!

And my number one fat burning secret, the secret that has helped so many overweight people just like you lose weight the easy way can be found in my new, scientifically proven, LazyTrim™ formula.

Dr. Rogers, a extraordinarily recognized as a leading expert in lifestyle weight and is presently the Director of a prestigious Medical Clinic. His specialties are general and family practice, weight loss, preventative and nutritional medicine with a specialty emphasis on overcoming fatigue. A physician whose many overweight people suffer. Dr. Rogers is a member of several professional societies of health care including the American Academy of Medical Preventics, the International Academy of Metabolology and the American Medical Association. Dr. Rogers believes LazyTrim is so effective that virtually anyone can now lose weight faster and better than they ever thought possible. GUARANTEED!

weight the hard way, the way that requires tons of effort, deprivation, and lots of will power, you doesn't work! It's like counting calories or even starving yourself that really makes the difference between a fat unhealthy unattractive body and a lean, healthy, beautifully proportioned body.

Why? Because your body will compensate for naturally decreased calorie intake and actually slow down the burning of fat. And even worse, when you go off your starvation diet, your body will overcompensate and continue what I called the "starvation response," which in plain words means you can actually pack more weight than you may have temporarily lost!

Fortunately, there's now a way to lose weight that doesn't require counting calories or starving yourself. And there's no need to change the foods you eat. Instead, you simply add my LazyTrim™ formula to what I call the easy way to lose weight, and it's my number one secret for having a beautiful slim, sparkling body, my number one secret for fitting into fashionable clothing, and my number one secret for enjoying the rest of your life as a happy, healthy permanently thin person.

It's really quite extraordinary, even if I do say so myself! For pure nutritional health and well being, I've put together two very special all natural pills, plus a diet system that can literally trick your body into burning excess weight for you, while you happily eat up to six meals a day! It's a process known to medical doctors as dynamic equation and I absolutely guarantee that it works. The program is literally so effective that it can cause your body to go into an almost non-stop fat burning frenzy while you continue to eat up to six delicious meals a day.

A fat burning frenzy that virtually destroys stubborn fat from your entire body, even those hard to reach areas like back and chin fat. A fat burning frenzy so powerful that it can only allow you to use the natural activating diet system for two weeks at a time!

That's right! It's a fact! There you by this powerful and effective method for each step fat destruction you may be tempted because it's so incredible hard to use it longer than two weeks. But I absolutely forbid it. You must give your body a chance to readjust for a period of at least one week. After this you can go back on what I call the Fat Burning Cycle and lose additional pounds. And even if you have only hundred pounds or more to lose, you can repeat the Fat Burning Cycle as many times as necessary.

I am very proud to say, I've spent years researching and then carefully selecting the diet system that tricks your body into relentlessly burning body fat, while you continue to eat up to six real meals a day. And you should know that the special pills that accompany the Nutrion Accounting Diet System have been specifically formulated to give you even more support on your desire to achieve the beautiful, attractive and healthy body of your dreams!

The first pill contains the full spectrum of both vitamins and minerals which you must have in order to safeguard against "vitamin depletion," a condition which can occur during rapid weight loss.

The second pill contains the following key ingredients which I call natural metabolic stimulators. IT'S A TOTALLY UNIQUE FORMULATION AND CONTAINS NO DRUGS WHATSOEVER!

Who Wants To Lose Up To

The Lazy Way!

metabolic accelerator.)

BEE POLLEN/BEE PROPOLIS (Super high nutrient [redacted] lasting energy.)

B-1 THIAMIN (Essential for carbohydrate metabolism.)

RADIX GINSENG (Recognized as natural energy booster for the last 5000 years)

GAMMA ORYZENOL (Helps stabilize fat emulsified stability.)

LECITHIN (Powerful antioxidant helps vitality in both mind and body.)

SARASAPARILLA (Absolutely wonderful herbal extract for increased health and well being.)

INOSINE (A naturally occurring metabolic product which may help reduce fatigue and improve metabolic functioning.)

But, believe it or not, these very special pills are NOT the reason why my lazy man's fat burning program will work so well for you. They're NOT the reason why you can drink pounds and inches of excess fluid. And they're NOT the reason why you may see dramatic results from slashes the very first day you try them!

The real reason why you can actually shed up to twenty pounds in two weeks the lazy way is due to the powerful female activating diet system.

And with the ladies activating diet system you get to do the one thing everybody else has told you not to do! You get to eat without counting calories! And I mean EAT! Six times a day! Eat as much you like of my patients almost fainted in disbelief when she stepped on the scale after just two weeks and witnessed the incredible amount of pounds and inches that seemingly vanished!

Just imagine eating six meals a day for two short weeks, enjoying yourself like never before, and then fitting into clothes you once thought impossible to wear. Imagine, two short wonderful weeks and you can kiss up to twenty pounds of fat, fish and excess fluids goodbye. Two short weeks to a happy, more seductive body. It's only the lazy way to lose weight!

Here is what some of my best clients are saying about their success. Of course, weight loss varies for every person and is depends on how well you follow the instructions, but nevertheless you'll have to agree that these are some pretty impressive results.

"Dr. Rogers I can't [redacted] say enough. I've been on the diet pills market for so long I thought I'd never get off. Thanks to LazyTrim I've finally lost the 30 stubborn pounds that has plagued my body for almost fifteen years. Thanks again."

— Barbara T. Los Angeles, CA

"Since I lost 27 pounds the lazy way, [redacted] even walk self confidence. I've got a new boyfriend and can finally wear the clothes I always dreamed of wearing."

— Katherine P. Long Beach, CA

"Dr. Rogers, you have drastically what I consider to be one of the most effective weight loss programs available today. And your support I know me as an added support. Keep up the great work."

Dr. M.P. Smithford, CT

"When it comes to losing weight I really am lazy. You must have had me in mind when you discovered Lazy Trim. Thank God you did, for now I worked! I've lost 32 Pounds and still going down."

Lucinda F. Houston, TX

"Dr. Rogers I'll be quite frank. I didn't believe you! But I tried LazyTrim anyway, and to my utter amazement I lost 41 pounds and never felt any symptoms of hunger or discomfort. Nothing. I've ever used was this easy or effective."

- Norma L. Wichita, KS

Can you blame me for believing in strength in the power of LazyTrim that I've put my medical reputation on the line to prove it!

How many diet pills or plans or systems have you tried that were actually developed by a licensed [redacted] Probably very few, if any. Why, because most people or companies have nothing to lose [redacted] weight loss programs don't work. They just don't care if your hopes and dreams are destroyed. Here today, gone tomorrow along with your hard earned cash.

Well, I've spent ten years going to college and then medical school, and then working as an intern, and then running my own medical practice during the day and doing scientific research almost every night and weekend, just to risk all this on a Fat Burning Program that doesn't do absolutely everything I say it can do. No absolutely not. I repeat, I will stake my hard-earned medical reputation on my fact that to lose weight. And I want to prove it's power and effectiveness to you right now!

CODS FIND SEVERED LEG — THEN ITS OWNER!

Near death and moaning pitifully, Bill Partlow was found lying in a clump of bushes — after cops tracked him from where a severed leg was found on a railroad track!

Partlow was found after another man, walking along the tracks in Charlotte, N.C., saw what he thought was a child's doll lying on the ground.

He gave it a kick and was horrified to discover that it wasn't a doll, it was a human foot and leg that had been severed at the knee!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

"The man called us and officers were sent to investigate," a police spokesman said.

"It was pretty obvious that someone had been hit by a train. There was the lower leg, but where was the rest of the victim?"

The officers initiated a search and heard moaning sounds coming from a clump of bushes. That's where they found Partlow lying.

An ambulance was called and he was rushed to the hospital.

Partlow was taken to the Carolinas Medical Center, where he was listed in fair condition. He is expected to recover.

"He said he was walking along the tracks at about 4:30 in the morning when two men came up behind him and started taunting and harassing him," the spokesman said.

"But that's the last thing he remembers until he regained consciousness in the bushes. He said he wasn't able to get up and investigated his body," the spokesman said.

"By the time the officers found him he was only able to moan."

World champion worm eater Norm Coval has been busy serving his country since swallowing 315 wigglers in only 24 minutes — a record that may never be broken.

Slime slurping Norm shattered the world mark of 160 worms in 1 hour 15 minutes during a stomach-churning worm-off in Bradford, Ontario, in 1985.

"Coval literally sucked those squigglers in like a vacuum cleaner," said Fred Baumgartner, who held the old record.

"When it comes to eating worms, Norm is truly a professional, a professional."

"There's no one on the world who can take him," Baumgartner added.

Coval, 31, hasn't worked many worms since that historic day. He is a former soldier stationed in Gander, Newfoundland and served with the Canadian Army in the Gulf during Operation Desert Storm.

"There just weren't many worms over there," Norm told the NEWS. "But I crunched a few rocks with my bumper, so the boys got stuck in their teeth."

Norm didn't win a prize for his incredible record-shattering performance six years ago.

"It was all for charity, but I was disappointed to get my name in The Guinness Book of World Records. That didn't happen."

"Norm stashed them all in front of his face, curled his tongue around them and sucked them straight down his throat," Baumgartner said.

Sucking down worms is easy, he said. "It's all psychological. It's [illegible] something slimy that's still alive turns a lot of people off," Norm said.

Devil-cult creeps preying on children

CHARGED: Jim Wright and wife Margie are facing seven counts of sexual battery.

. . . but cops stop the satanic slimeballs' reign of terror

By JACK ALEX
Star staff

A terrified family has dropped out of sight because they fear a vengeful satanic cult might kill or kidnap them.

The Satan worshippers don't want three children in the family to testify against two devil cult members, Jim and Margie Wright, according to Assistant State Atty. John Williams.

Wright, 38, is charged with nine counts of sexual battery on a child under 12 and eight counts of performing devil acts like with Margie, 29. is charged with eight counts of sexual battery.

The children are all relatives Williams said. "The Wrights are after these children and will stop at nothing to silence them."

Fla., family whose visiting nightmare allegedly began almost a year ago when they met the Wrights at a church meeting.

They allowed the Wrights who lived nearby their home or a trailer to shower and do their laundry. Two months later the family was jolted by news that the Wrights were in jail.

The couple is accused of sexually abusing children, including the couple's three sons, ages 6, 7, and 8.

Detectives say the young sters have talked of being raped at gunpoint and were told they and their parents would be murdered if they told about the sexual attacks.

A 9-year-old boy said one of Wright's favorite tricks involved a magic show and to pull a gun out of a hat and make it disappear. Detectives said the boy told them Wright told him the gun was real and he would be killed if he told anyone.

I didn't tell because I was scared Jim had a gun and said he'd kill my family and he put a bad curse on us Jim said devil words to us. I was scared like that he was saying.

The children also told police almost satanic rituals, relatives filled with blood and a lion looking at a child, according to sheriff's deputies. Wright told sacrificed a sexy dog during a magic show, cops said. Deputies later found the dog's carcass near Wright's trailer.

Cops still pleaded with them to keep the family safe until the Wrights trial.

Meanwhile, the three boys and the other alleged victims are getting psychological counseling.

Bureaucrats and farmer his cows' boobs are too big

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Straitlaced city slickers want farmer John Eastland to keep some of his more gifted dairy cows out of sight — because their udders are too big.

One of the prudes felt so strongly about the big boobed breed they filed a complaint with animal control officers in Riverland Park, Kan.

"They wanted me to hide the largest cows in the public outhouse," said Eastland, who hasn't going to do any such thing," said Eastland, whose herd a dairy farmer for 56 years.

Eastland said several cows in his 110 herd currently had udders which are still swollen. "That's the reason their udders are swollen," he said. "But it's a natural thing."

The yuppie dairyman said cows are like women. Some women have big breasts and some don't. "Are we supposed to hide the mothers with the big ones?"

Someone complained in the city who knows nothing about cows, Eastland believes.

"Maybe they thought I was abusing or neglecting the cows," he said.

Animal control supervisor Shelly Hendrick said he just wanted Eastland to know a complaint had been filed.

"I don't know who done the complaining, but it was our job to follow up," he said. "It's kind of natural that cows udders are going to swell up sometime. The only suggestion is to hide the cows that big; a lot of people don't understand."

Eastland and his farming friends have had more than a few laughs over the complaints.

"One of my friends left a message on my telephone recorder saying she makes IT'S only natural that cows' udders get big when they're nursing," says Eastland.

Dirty doc assaulted 5 women patients!

A sex-crazed doctor who told a woman with a sore throat to lie down and take her clothes off has been sent to prison — for fondling her.

Dr Nirmlar Chandra Roy, 61, was sentenced to 18 months in prison after a jury in Nottingham, England, found him guilty of five counts of indecently assaulting four women patients.

One pregnant patient testified that Roy fondled her while her little boy sat on her lap. Another of four said he gave her an internal exam that was more like foreplay than a medical exam.

Another patient, who was given an internal exam by the dirty doc, testified: "He told me he was the doctor and knew best. He asked if I had sex often and whether I enjoyed every time."

Judge John Hopkin told the defendant: "You indulged in certain practices for your own sexual pleasure under the guise of conducting a proper medical exam."

A spokesman for the medical board said Dr. Roy's

Stupid babysitter drowns toddler in washing machine!

By PAMELA NORRIS
Correspondent

A teenage babysitter took her instructions too literally when she was told to do a load of laundry and give Junior a bath — and she tossed the one-year-old baby in the washing machine with the dirty clothes!

The toddler drowned and police have charged 15-year-old Nancy Shiu with manslaughter.

"I said her 'Do the laundry. Then bathe the baby.' I supposed the heartbroken mother. She was listening to the radio with earphones on so the Nancy but I thought she understood.

"She looked at me puzzled and said something back like 'Uh-huh.' So I assumed and I naturally assumed she had understood those simple instructions."

The mother tragedy happened in Xin-jiang, China.

Police say the young teen had grown up on a primitive farm.

They believe she had never seen modern appliances like washing machines.

She came to us as a nanny and even though she was an orphan we felt she was sincere and was willing to learn about our way of doing things," the mother, Jan Chen, said.

"We showed her how to operate the washing machine and she seemed to grasp what we were saying.

"She was very excited about all our appliances and she wore those earphones all the time.

"She acted as if she just couldn't wait for us to leave so she could start the laundry.

"She said she would wash everything that was dirty."

The teenager told police she didn't hear the baby's cries because she was listening to the radio.

NEWS reports of tragic accident shocked readers around the world.

Study finds 1 in 3 grown men still living with their parents

More guys than gals are living with their parents after they reach adulthood — and it's probably because they're so spoiled by their moms, experts say.

Mothers scrub, cook clothes and cook meals for their grown sons but let these same sons go to bars with waitresses.

But parents are stricter with their adult daughters. That's probably why a whopping 33 percent of adult single men live with their mom and dad, while only 20 percent of adult single gals do.

"This supports that the nest is a lot better feathered for the boys than it is for the girls," said Frances Goldscheider, professor of sociology at Brown University.

"Guys often get a totally free ride from their mothers when it comes to household chores."

Beautiful new home was built by 344 women!

By SUSAN JIMISON

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Janet Stewart's newly constructed home has never been touched by the hand of man — because it was built entirely by a team of hardworking women!

The cozy three-bedroom, one and a-half-bath home went up in just three months as a swarming crowd of female construction workers — carpenters, tile setters, electricians and plumbers donated their efforts to the project. The house was built by Habitat for Humanity and Mrs. Stewart has only to pay the mortgage to keep it.

MUMMY PROVES CHINESE FOUND AMERICA FIRST!

By MICHAEL TODD
Special correspondent

The discovery of a Chinese mummy in Peru proves that Asian ships sailed to the Americas 800 years before European explorers even dreamed of coming to the New World!

Artifacts, mummy along with the remains of two horses, a chariot and maps of China and Peru were found at an archaeological site in South America.

Asian explorers reached the New World 800 years BEFORE Columbus!

"The Spanish and the Portuguese think of themselves as the world's greatest early explorers but nothing could be further from the truth," Axel Kjaebel, the archaeologist, told reporters in Aarhus, Denmark.

"The Chinese were centuries ahead of them. This mummy proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that they had the ships, the intelligence, the courage and the will to reach South America in the year 700.

"The Spanish and Portuguese at that time still thought the world was flat. They were terrified to sail too far for fear of falling off the edge of the Earth."

Dr Kjaebel discovered the Chinese mummy at an archaeological dig east of Lima in April.

The mummy is thought to be that of a man who died of a severe viral infection in his early 30s.

He was buried with the remains of two horses, a chariot, ancient pottery and highly detailed maps of both China and Peru.

"It would appear that the young explorer had an obsession of wishing back to China," said the expert.

"In fact there is some evidence to show that he actually attempted to set himself up as king of Peru's ancient Indian population."

Bits of pottery found along with his body show Indian women bowing before an Oriental man seated on a throne.

The rise of South America's Inca empire was still hundreds of years away.

But Dr Kjaebel speculated that the seeds of the great Inca civilization might actually have been sown by the Chinese explorer.

"This young man," he added, "just might have given South America the greatest civilization that it has ever known."

Dr Kjaebel plans a return trip to Peru in search for more revealing evidence of ancient Oriental influence in the New World.

"We are particularly interested in finding out if the boats they used to cross the Pacific Ocean," explained the expert.

French kiss helps cop beat cocaine rap!

A Miami cop beat cocaine charges that could have cost him his badge — by convincing officials that a French kiss was the reason cocaine had been found in his body!

Officer Anthony Rice told prosecutors at his hearing that the illicit drug got into his system during a visit to his girlfriend. The woman, identified only as Miss [illegible], had allegedly kissed Rice passionately just before he was stopped for a routine traffic violation.

Rice claimed that the drug had been slipped into his mouth during the kiss.

Rice passed a lie detector test and was cleared of all charges.

Car phones keep tabs on teenagers!

Parents with car phones are more than happy to let the kids have the use — because they can keep tabs on them just by dialing them up.

Fat cat's diet plan costs a cool $15,000 a plate!

Millionaire loses 145 pounds — in only eight weeks!

Yutaka and wife fat and Hiroshi Yamada

By MICHAEL TODD
Special to The Sun

A Japanese millionaire brags that he has lost 145 pounds in less than eight weeks on a diet only a handful of people can enjoy — the most expensive diet in the world.

He calls it the Rich Man's Diet, with each meal costing at least $15,000, and consisting of only the most expensive food and drink in the world, all prepared on his estate near Kyoto.

Hiroshi Yamata, 55, made his millions specializing in Japan's lucrative real estate market. And during that time he ballooned to a whopping 356 pounds!

A typical meal for Yamata will include sushi — raw, unsalted fish — prepared by his personal chef and wrapped in very thin 24 karat gold foil.

"The gold foil adds a distinctive and spicy taste to the sushi," he explains. "It's like no other taste I can think of.

"And it's great for my liver."

His favorite dishes is wild pigeon from the Khao Poh Mountains of China, costing $20,000 an ounce.

Yamata also orders truffles with every meal, at nearly $1,000 an ounce.

"It is costs a lot of money, I'll admit it," he says. "This approach has worked for me in wonderful ways. My cholesterol level is below 175. My weight is the lowest it's been in the past 40 years."

Yamata says his doctors are amazed and visit Osho for consultations on scientific topics for the diet.

"I love to eat the rarest of meals — even endangered species.

"For example, I just ate a roasted rabbit, specially prepared by the head Bedouin chef flown in from the Sahara Desert."

The Bedouin dish is more than just camel meat, Yamata says.

It features seabird eggs stuffed into fish, the fish stuffed into roasted chickens, the chickens stuffed into a roasted sheep's carcass, and then the sheep stuffed into a whole camel — all for about $7,000.

Millionaire Yamata's wife has to eat the rarest on the world, including cases of priceless 1787 Chateau Lafite claret, a single bottle of which sold for a whopping $175,000 back in 1985.

Stone balls found in South America actually space alien POOP, say scientists!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Scientists have finally discovered the origin of hundreds of mysterious stone balls scattered throughout Latin America: They are the petrified poop of space aliens!

The giant spheres — some of which weigh as much as 20 tons — are actually packed sewage left behind on landing sites aliens used when visiting Earth, experts say. Over the thousands of years since they were deposited in parts of Costa Rica, Mexico, Guatemala and Nicaragua they have been changed by natural forces into giant balls of granite and limestone.

"We have studied thousands of samples of the rocks and have determined that they were originally made of organic matter which was transformed under certain pressure into a perfectly rounded shape," said Dr. Eugenio Valdez, an archaeologist in Costa Rica who has worked extensively with the spheres.

"The organic matter is making up our computer and appears to contain components not found here on Earth.

"We believe that the balls were formed out of extraterrestrial materials, organic substances simply not known here.

BIZARRE space spheres weighing up to 20 tons each are actually centuries-old sewage left on Earth by space aliens.

Flying saucers used Earth as interplanetary outhouse!

have been deposited on some manner before they were petrified, we have concluded they're probably waste products of some sort."

Dr. Valdez and fellow colleagues have performed numerous experiments on the rock to see what it was originally made of.

They say they have found that it was mostly shredded organic matter, but that occasionally they have run across odds and ends of what appears to be trash.

The space trash has included three containers made of a metallic substance, two plastic-like tubular objects and fragments of what appears to be woven fibers.

"Near one spot which had a particularly large supply of the balls, we found indestructibles as the rock that might have been made by landing gear," Dr. Valdez said. "But for the most part, we have our theories on the makeup of the sewage themselves.

"When we take them [the balls] apart in the lab, we find that they are filled with a substance that is very similar to human feces.

"The only difference is that the feces in the balls is as small as a fleck of tiny wheat. We believe the size varied according to the length of the stay of our extraterrestrial visitors. The longer they stayed, the bigger the waste ball."

Archaeologists at the University of Mexico and elsewhere have begun studies of the balls with the aim of confirming or refuting the theories of Dr. Valdez, who published her novel ideas in a journal last spring.

"This is a pretty far-fetched theory," said Dr. Hernando Pereira-Valera, an expert on ancient rock formations. "But we can't say Dr. Valdez' ideas are wrong until we've thoroughly investigated her findings."

COLLEGE DUMPS CURVY CHEERLEADER FOR BEING TOO FAT!

College bigshots told a cute coed she was too chubby to be a cheerleader and kicked her off the squad.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," said heartbroken Michelle Sudnik, a 5-foot-6, 130-pound beauty who has since dropped out of the University of Connecticut.

"You should be judged on your ability, not how much you weigh. I was a good cheerleader."

Michelle, 21, was ecstatic in the spring of 1990 when she made the cheerleading squad on her ability, despite weighing 147 pounds — 22 pounds over the weight limit set by UConn officials.

She had trimmed down to 130 when fall classes began, but still had to endure weekly weigh-in sessions to meet the 125-pound limit.

"I took water pills before the weigh-in every Tuesday to keep onto my dream," she told The NEWS.

By dieting and living on lettuce and water for a week, the determined coed was down to 123 for the big homecoming game.

But she began to pile on pounds after the game and on Feb. 5, 1991, she was cut from the cheerleading squad, according to a complaint Michelle filed with the Connecticut Commission on Human Rights and Opportunities.

Her complaint accused the university of sex discrimination because there are no weight limits for male cheerleaders, only strength requirements.

The university has since dropped the weight restriction. But it may not do Michelle any good. She was so humiliated, she dropped out of school. "I'm working part-time and trying to get my life back together," she said. "I'm planning to return to some school in the fall. I have one and a half years left."

A university spokeswoman explained that the weight policy was based on the possibility a male cheerleader could be injured catching someone who weighs a certain weight.

Michelle isn't sure she wants to return to the university.

"Society sends out the wrong signals. This is so unfair to me, society says.

"It isn't fair and a lot of people suffer because of it," Michelle said.

"I may have won a guarantee that I'll be protected from official discrimination, but I won't be protected against what the kids will say," she said.

"The rumor is that 'you're fat.' the rumors that were spread about me, I couldn't take it."

PRETTY Michelle Sudnik knocked herself out to try to please University of Court says house IS haunted!

An old 13-room Victorian mansion is officially haunted — by a court order.

A New York appeals court ruled a couple who plunked down a $22,500 deposit to buy the spooky house should get the money back because the previous owner hadn't said boo to them about the place being haunted.

Former owner Helen Ackley said the three-story house had been haunted for years by the ghost of her dead husband. But she didn't tell Jeffrey and Patrice Stambovsky about it when they gave her the $22,500 down payment.

Mrs. Stambovsky, who was pregnant at the time, was disturbed later when she heard about the ghost.

The couple wanted their money back and Mrs. Ackley wouldn't give it to them.

Texas rainmaker: African witch docs are sucking our best clouds away!

An American rainmaker says he is being put out of business by ruthless witch doctors who are sucking away the wettest and juiciest clouds to Africa — thousands of miles away.

"My town has been in a drought for a month now and I haven't been able to do anything to stop it," Manuel Rodrigues said. "It's these rainmakers from Africa. They are stealing all the best clouds."

Rodrigues has been a rainmaker in Southwest Texas for seven years. He learned his craft from Indians.

"They showed me how to bring in clouds and until now I could make them open up and rain, just about any time I wanted," he said. "I'll be the first to admit that I might not be the best rainmaker in the world but that's no reason for all these Africans to take advantage of me."

Rodrigues said his inability to make rain has cost him his hard-earned reputation.

"There are people who don't believe in rainmakers," he said. "Under the right circumstances, I can make rain, all my clients know that. But when I go through the entire ritual and there isn't a cloud anywhere, people start to doubt me."

Rodrigues said he has appealed to African rainmakers but they refused to stop stealing our clouds.

"They don't care about me and they don't care about Texas," he said. "They are just selfish. They come from tiny countries and they know all the tricks of the trade. It's easy for them to make a fool of a first generation rainmaker like me."

Rodrigues pointed out his region is 10 inches below its normal rainfall for the year. He says Zambia is exactly that much rainfall above normal for the same period.

"As far as I'm concerned, that clinches it," he said. "They are stealing all our rain, pure and simple."

A spokesman for the Zambia Agricultural Commission confirmed that his area has had unusually high rainfall this year but refused to attribute it to rainmakers.

"If Mr. Rodrigues cannot do his work, he should not be blaming us," the spokesman said.

But Rodrigues says the African cloud-stealers are not alone. He claims that Mexican rainmakers are also getting in on the act.

Farmer Tommy Watkins and his sister Dorothy say they were raised by the best parent a kid could ever hope for — the ghost of their dead mother!

The pair say their parents died in a farm accident back in 1968, leaving them alone in the world when Tommy was 8 and his sister was 6. But the spirit of their dead mother, Edith, stuck around to take care of them and she still visits to see how they're doing.

"Mom and dad were killed when a generator they were fixing exploded and burned," says Tommy, 31, who runs the family farm near Athens, Ga. "When we found them, we saw a ghostly form floating over my mom's body.

"The ghost told us not to tell anyone what had happened and not to worry, that it would take care of us. It spoke with the voice of our mother and it stayed with us all through our childhood."

Tommy and Dorothy kept their incredible secret all through their youth, but the story finally came to light several months ago when a problem with the farm mortgage required their parents' signatures.

The brother and sister confessed that their parents had died years ago and that they had buried them quietly behind the farmhouse. Authorities exhumed the couple's bodies and confirmed that they died of severe electrical burns.

"When we were little, mom's ghost was with us all the time, almost as if she were alive," Dorothy, 29, recalled. "She would tell us what chores to do. She'd help us with the homework. And she taught us both to cook and grow a garden so we'd have plenty to eat.

"For the first couple of years when we were really young, the family farm kind of fell apart. But as we got older and stronger, we were able to get it earning a profit again."

The brother and sister say their ghostly guardian made phone calls and wrote letters to conduct family business and sent notes to school while they were growing up. The children never told anyone their parents had died and refused to

Lawnmower rider busted for DUI

A man who hasn't driven a car for five years was arrested for drunken driving — because he was tipsy when he drove his lawn mower onto the path of a train, authorities say.

Human nutcracker shells walnuts with his buns!

Muscle-bunn Jose Asterorka set a world record for cracking walnuts with his buttocks when he busted open 30 of them in 57 seconds flat!

"Yes!" shrieked Asterorka, 34, as he claimed his victory and trophy at the first annual "nutcracking with the bottom championships" in Korizubi, Spain.

"I felt really good today and knew I had a chance of victory. I've been practicing for the past 13 months and I'm so glad it paid off."

Asterorka, who is married and has two children, was one of 12 contestants who competed in the unusual contest.

Each competitor had to sit on a pile of walnuts and crack as many as they could in 60 seconds.

Asterorka's time of less than a minute exceeded everyone's expectations.

"The only true challenger I had was my brother, Juan, and it took him 58 seconds to get the job done."

The nutcracking championships were part of a city-wide fiesta and 20 men wearing spex-backed swim trunks competed in hope of setting the world record.

Judges placed 30 walnuts on and at the appointed time told them to "start cracking!"

"The rules required us to squat over the nuts, dig down and pick them up with our buttocks and crack them by flexing our muscles," said Jose Asterorka.

"Grabbing them was really the easy part. Getting them into position was hard because we couldn't use our hands."

The second runner-up is the over his walnuts, which left the Asterorka brothers in a class by themselves.

Contest organizers initially attributed their blazing speed "to a peculiar physical characteristic that runs in the family."

Pressed to elaborate, they conceded that the brothers "have unusually muscular buttocks with extra-wide cleft that enabled them to pick up and than everyone else in the competition."

Jose Asterorka plans to submit his nut-cracking time and record to The Guinness Book of Records and hopes to be included in the next edition.

"I'll certainly enter the championships next year and I don't intend to rest on my laurels," he said. "I plan to spend the next 13 months practicing so that I can beat my old
